Serving Christ in Colombia

César has been called to teach biblical studies in the School of Theology at the Reformed University of Colombia. His classrooms will be occupied by men and women who will provide clergy leadership for the Presbyterian Church of Colombia and other Protestant churches in Colombia. César says Colombia is a place where many are searching for meaning. “In this searching,” he explains, “people find many obstacles like the lack of equal opportunities for education, unfair salaries, oppressive structures, and lack of hope for the future because of structural violence and displacement.” César is committed to serving alongside Colombian Presbyterians as they strive to address these challenges.
